Introduction

Career planning is not just about your next promotion, your personal development plan or just where you want to be in five years time. It is about;

- Your reputation
- Your market value
- Creating options

In this course, you will have the chance to see someone who has carved out a varied and successful career.

You will reflect on your reputation and its impact, work on increasing your market value and create options to take control of your future career direction.

Who Should Attend?

Anyone who works in a competitive environment, or is determined to develop a challenging and rewarding career.

Benefits

This workshop will help participants:

- Understand the impact of their reputation on their career;
- Take positive steps to establish the reputation they desire;
- Identify their current market worth;
- Understand how they can create career options in a changing world.

Course Content

Participants will examine the following:

- Learn from someone who has developed a successful and diverse career;
- Apply the successful lessons to their own circumstances.
